

My husband and I wish to have the no call list information left as is. Since putting our names on this list our phone has virtually stopped ringing with those annoying calls from telemarketers and others that were allowed to call us whenever they wished. It has made our lives and peace of mind much easier, especially at supper time when most of the calls came. Of course there were those calls that came after 9pm almost every evening, too, that interrupted our evening routine, especially when some of those nights we had already retired for the night. I remember asking the caller if they were aware of the time they were calling us and there was the frequent answer, " we're not sure what time zone you are in, so we don't what your time is". I always wondered where they were calling from but rarely was given an answer when I asked. I especially tired quickly of those calls when no one seemed to be on the line when I said hello and or got a recorded message. The hang ups were also annoying.

As I stated above, we would appreciate leaving the no call as it is now, please leave it alone. Thanks for allowing us to comment.
